

Australian Genomics & Mito Foundation Genetic Testing Partnership

We are pleased to announce that, in partnership with the Australian Genomics Health Alliance (Australian Genomics), a new research opportunity for people with suspected mitochondrial disease has become available.

Through this research project, individuals who meet the appropriate entry criteria can gain access to state-of-the-art genetic testing for mitochondrial disease. The purpose of this study is to evaluate new molecular technologies (tests) which look for changes in your DNA (genetic code) responsible for causing mitochondrial disease. The results of this study will help determine the most effective approach to the diagnosis of mitochondrial disease and will hopefully aid earlier intervention and improved outcomes for patients and families with these disorders.

Click here for more information on Australian Genomics.

This Australia-wide project will run for about two years from 2016. To be eligible, you will need to be referred to one of the following specialist clinics to determine if you meet the entry criteria for the study:
